 HEC LIÈGE
LUXEMBOURG
In association with Chamber of Commerce

WORDS FROM THE HEC LIÈGE DEAN

Today, we are collectively involved in a globalized world that invites interculturality, language skills, and internationality.

Business and economic models are being questioned and are evolving towards more social and sustainable governance ethics.

We share our students' expectations, which are different from the past. They are looking for the world to change and to act on it. The circular economy, SMEs, cooperatives or even a revival of the public service are shaking up the old model, and many young people are moving towards these alternatives.

This requires more versatile knowledge, practices and approaches.

Cross-disciplinarity and curiosity, combined with academic rigor, allow students to refine their openness and their critical view of the world.

This is what HEC Liège has to offer them!

FROM THE DESK OF OUR ACADEMIC DIRECTOR:

At HEC Liège Luxembourg, we are privileged to have a top-notch adjunct faculty, bringing together top professionals from diverse industries. Our adjunct professors are leaders in their respective fields, with extensive real-world experience and a deep understanding of current business challenges. Their insights and practical knowledge greatly enrich our academic environment, providing our students with valuable, hands-on learning that goes beyond theoretical concepts.

The practical focus of our programs is one of our defining features. We emphasize the application of classroom knowledge to real-world business scenarios, ensuring that our students are not only well-versed in academic theory but also prepared to excel in the fast-paced business environment. Case studies, industry collaborations, and live projects form an integral part of our curriculum, bridging the gap between theory and practice.

Our commitment to delivering a well-rounded, impactful education is enhanced by the contributions of our esteemed adjunct faculty, who continually inspire and challenge our students to think critically and strategically.

We are confident that this unique blend of academic rigor and practical application sets our programs apart and equips our students for success in the competitive global market.
